

Dear Humidipak User:

Thank you for purchasing the new, improved Planet Waves Humidipak system. This patented technology releases and absorbs humidity automatically with little required intervention. While this is a fabulous technology which we have tested endlessly in multiple laboratories and with thousands of customers, it is impossible for us to identify and test every kind of finish, hardware material and case lining that has ever been introduced.

Regardless of what guitars or cases you may own, it is important to check them periodically when first beginning to use the Humidipak system. If you notice any side effects, like discoloration of linings or a change in the color of any hardware on your instrument please report it immediately to us so we may continue to take action to continue to improve the performance of this product.

As with any new, innovative technology improvements need to be made as issues are discovered. We know how valuable your guitars are to you. No care system can be effortless. Your monitoring and interaction is recommended to insure that no side effects from the use of this system will occur with your particular instrument or case. If you have any concerns about the function of this product, please contact us via email at consumersupport@daddario.com or by phone at 800-DAD-ARIO.

Proper instrument care will avoid costly repairs and keep your instruments in optimal playing condition. The Humidipak system will keep your instrument at the proper humidity level. Visit www.planetwaves.com to see the full range of care products we offer.

Again we thank you for your support.

Yours truly,

Jim D'Addario
